

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

There are 4 people in a room. Each person randomly chooses a positive integer less than 11. What is the probability that at least two of the people choose the same number?

Express your answer as a decimal.

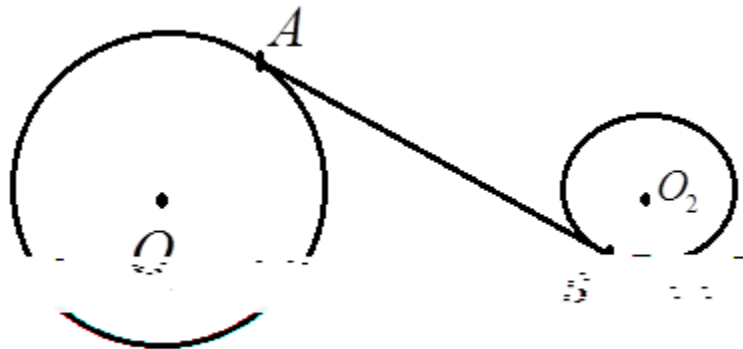

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

Let $f(x) = x^4 + ax^2 + bx + c$ where $a, b,$ and

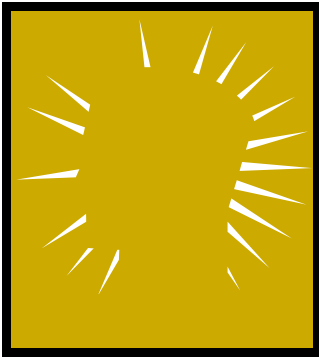

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

The centers O_1 and O_2 , of two circles are 24 centimeters apart. The larger circle has a radius of 6 centimeters and the smaller circle has a radius of 3 centimeters.

What is the length AB of their common internal tangent? Provide an exact answer.

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

Determinetan if $\tan \theta = 7$ and $\cot \theta = 4$. Provide an exact answer.

1 #

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

One inch is exactly 2.54 centimeters. Find the radius of the smallest circle whose area is both a natural number of square inches and a natural number of square centimeters. Give your answer as an exact number of inches.

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

Given $f(x) = 2x^2 + 4x^4 + 6x^6 + \dots + 100x^{100}$ and $g(x) = x + 3x^3 + 5x^5 + \dots + 99x^{99}$, evaluate $\frac{f(g(x))}{g(f(x))}$ in simplest form (an integer).

1

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

Find the largest number less than 1,200 that is a product of four different prime numbers.

*University of North Georgia
Sophomore Level Mathematics Tournament
April 5, 2014*

If $y = \log_{\frac{1}{3}} \frac{1}{x^2 - 2}$, for what values of x is $y < 0$?

Provide an exact answer written in interval notation.

